

Farm Vet - Pigs - North Yorkshire

Do you have a passion for working with farm animals, or are already experienced working with pigs?

Would you like to progress your career in herd health knowledge, working with forward thinking, long term clients and a friendly clinical team?

We are looking for a colleague to join our progressive pig veterinary team who has experience of working on farm, though no pig knowledge is necessary.

As an independent practice, we are looking for vets who will help us shape the future of the pig sector and have a passion and interest in meeting the changing future needs of our clients.

The successful candidate will be passionate about livestock farming with a strong pig interest. Good communication ability, investigative skills and personal drive will be needed.

Our four vet pig team is widely respected for its long-standing role as a leading progressive practice engaged at every level of the sector. Our specialised pig vets are widely regarded as industry experts and help shape the direction of the sector through a variety of roles as well as working with some of the most technically progressive farmers in the country. The strength of our farm clients is a key part of our success as they challenge us to develop with them.

If you are a vet who wants to play a role in the future of pig veterinary work at an independent practice with scope for progression and autonomy, then please send your CV and a covering letter to:
